IRISH TURNS AND TWISTS.

The Unconscious Humor That Crops Out In the Green Isle.

The author of "Irish Life and Character" says truly that one has only to mix with an Irish crowd to hear many a laughable expression, quite innocently uttered. As the Duke and Duchess of York were leaving Dublin in 1897, amid enthusiastic cheering, an old woman remarked:

"Ah! Isn't it the fine reception they're gettin, goin away?"

In 1892 Dublin university celebrated its tercentenary, and crowds of visitors were attracted to the city. Two laborers, rejoiced at the general prosperity, expressed their feelings.

"Well, Tim," said one, "thim tarsintinaries does a dale for the thrade of Dublin, and no mistake."

"Oh, faix they do!" said the other. "And whin, with the blessin of God, we get home rule, sure we can have as manny of thim as we plase."

An old woman, seeing a man pulling a young calf roughly along the road, exclaimed:

"Oh, you bla'guard! That's no way to thrate a fellow crather."

"Sure," said a laborer to a young lady who was urging him to send his children to school, "I'd do anything for such a sweet, gintlemanly lady as yourself."

Again, the laborers on a large estate decided that it would be more convenient for them if they could be paid every week instead of every fortnight. One of their number was sent to place their proposition before the land agent, and this was his statement:

"If you please, sir, it's me desire, and it is also ivery other man's desire, that we resave out fortnight's pay ivery week."

An exasperated sergeant, drilling a squad of recruits, called to them at last:

"Halt!" Just come over here, all of ye, and look at yourselves. It's a fine line ye're keepin, isn't it?"

Oriental Punishments.

The heathen Chinee deems the desecration of graves one of the most unpardonable of crimes, and, according to law, any man finding another in the act of robbing a graveyard may legally kill the villain on the spot without fear of consequences.

If a Turkish baker palms off a loaf of bread on you that is proved to be of less weight than it is represented, you can instruct a policeman to nail the defaulter by one of his ears to the door of his shop so as to be in full view of the passersby. The poor wretch will then be provided with a sharp dagger or knife, with which he can cut himself fee so soon as he can summon up the necessary courage required for the operation of self maiming.

In many of the oriental countries, where precious stones are looked upon as well nigh sacred objects, it is no uncommon thing for a jewel robber to be punished with death. In Tibet the penalty for falling from your horse when taking part in any military operations or public athletics is death.

One writer recalls how he saw a man shot in Montenegro for appearing at a review wearing a stained uniform.

Golf.

The game of golf was put down by an act of parliament in Scotland in 1841 as a nuisance. Then fines were inflicted on people who were found guilty of playing the game, for it interfered with the practice of archery, as men preferred wielding the club to pulling the bow.

Astounded The Editor.

Editor S. A. Brown, of the Bennettsville, S. C., was once immensely surprised. "Through long suffering from Dyspepsia," he writes, "my wife was greatly run down. She had no strength or vigor and suffered great distress from her stomach, but she tried Electric Bitters which helped her at once, and, after using four bottles, she is entirely well, can eat anything. It's a grand tonic, and its gentle laxative qualities are splendid for torpid liver." For indigestion, loss of Appetite, Stomach and Liver troubles it's a positive, guaranteed cure. Only 50 cents a S. J. Hodgkinson's Drug Store.

The Washoe Lunch Counter has firmly established its reputation in Reno as a first class eating house. At any hour of the day or night you are assured a hearty meal at Block & Clausen's.

DEMOCRATIC AND SILVER PARTY TICKET.

The Democratic and Silver party conventions made a fusion of forces on Tuesday and nominated a county ticket. From the beginning to the close of the conventions the delegates acted the part of men who were seeking the best interests of the county and State. We have said, acted the part of men, which is insufficient to describe the presence of the delegates when dealing with public matters when in convention, as they were men who by their action were seeking to secure the public good through disinterested work and the exercise of their best judgment to that end.

It is refreshing to see men doing business when they take an independent and manly stand in public matters, which has been almost unknown in Nevada. There is in the work of the conventions a harbinger of future good for the people. There is also evidence that the better manhood of Americans is not dead, but has been sleeping, and that they have been doing as men too often do, sleeping on their rights. The ticket made by the conventions is composed of good and true men who will serve the people by doing that which their judgment, when informed, will be for the good of the State.

The legislative ticket is composed of young men who should be and will be public spirited when called on to provide ways and means for the development of the State's resources, present and future. In the selection of Professor R. D. Jackson, late professor at the State University, there was an evident intention to secure the best talent in the State in connection with the demand there is for improvement of the State's physical resources. Water storage, irrigation and mining will have in the Professor an able and consistent advocate and supporter. There is not a department in legislation that demands special talent more than the departments named, and there is not a man in the State who has more of it than Professor Jackson.

Albert Revert of Verdi is a young man, possessed of intelligence and integrity, who will make a diligent member of the house and a firm supporter of the rights of the people. He has had experience sufficient to educate him in the practical business of life and convince his mind that the only security there is to an industrial world is secured through good government.

George E. Peckham, known through the columns of the newspapers as "Farmer," will make a conservative representative and an able and active advocate of the rights of the people. It will be his purpose to secure the improvement of the State's resources and the development of its natural wealth. He will endeavor to correct abuses, institute reforms and further legislation that will give character to the State.

Phil Jacobs is a Reno young man who should know and does know that there is not anything that brings prosperity to a community or to a State like confidence in its future business prospects. He is engaged in mercantile pursuits with his father in Reno. His education should bring to his aid as a legislator the experience necessary to aid and direct whatever may tend to increase business, which is so connected with prosperity that the people will have in Mr. Jacobs an intelligent representative.

W. W. Webster is a young man who has developed in Washoe county under adverse circumstances. He became a printer when he was a boy and has continued in the business, which may not tend to recommend anything there is in him respecting the practical side there is to life, but if he has profited from his early education which taught him to secure, as an American citizen, when opportunity was given, the rights of all the people, he will do no harm.

The business of county officers is local and pertains chiefly to the finances of the county. Mr. Frazer is a gentlemen who is so well known that any detail of his qualifications for the office of commissioner would be superfluous.

Mr. Holcombe is a farmer who has been identified with the county from the beginning and is one of its best citizens. It is not necessary to enter into any detail of his ability or qualifications for the office of commissioner. He is conservative and understands the value of a dollar when it is his own, and he will take with him a like understanding respecting the value of the dollars that belong to the people. He will make a good commissioner.

Sheriff McInnis, Dan Boyd and Ben Shearer have been in business till their services have proved to be a much better recommendation to the people than anything that the JOURNAL might say about them. The best way to dispose of them is by letting them alone in their glory.

Charles H. Stoddard was nominated for county clerk and ex officio clerk of the District court. Charley has been assessor of the county and done his work well, which is a recommendation that his future services will be equal to his former service when in the office of Assessor. Charley will make an accommodating and first class clerk.

W. H. A. Pike was nominated to the office of District Attorney which is one of the responsible offices in the county. Mr. Pike may not bring to his aid a large experience at the bar, but he will bring energy and a will to improve upon the opportunity there is given to make himself master of the situation, which he will do. He has the business snap required in the office which will make him an efficient officer.

Samuel D. Cornell received the nomination for the office of Public Administrator. He will make a good Administrator and Coroner.

Reno township officers nominated are Charles A. Richardson for Justice of the Peace and Frank Folsom for Constable. The gentlemen will make good officers. The ticket could not be improved upon, which is all the people could expect from the work of those who represented them in convention.

IS GETTING BETTER

The Reno Star Mine Produces Richer Rock Every Day.

The Wedekind mine seems to have petered out. The lowest workings are producing rock that won't run much over $3,000 a ton and some of it goes as low as $60.

The ore now in sight is only worth a trifle, maybe a hundred thousand dollars, might be a little more.

It's strange Mr. Wedekind doesn't bond it to somebody, who'll give him ten thousand dollars down. Possibly he thinks it worth more.

Yesterday afternoon a JOURNAL reporter visited the mine and was shown about and given all the specimens he could pack away. One piece in particular showed more silver than rock, and another carried six hundred dollars in gold, but didn't show a color. Still another was a chunk of quartzite, closely resembling quartz. This is liberally peppered with black sulphides. The quartzite, or quartz, is not yet in place. It appears to have been forced upward.

When the quartzite is found in permanent position, then the Wedekinds will know how to proceed to extract ore in quantity. At present they are merely prospecting. They are working slowly, driving short inclines and drifts in three directions from the face of the big open cut. They are all in ore which runs, as was stated in the first paragraph, from $60 to $3,000 a ton.

The ore house now contains thirty-five tons of splendid ore. The lower grades are being heaped up on a dump which now contains about 200 tons. They will let this heap lie until they put up their mill.

No stoping has been attempted. Really no effort has been made to extract a quantity of ore, although in their prospecting work they were compelled to extract $8,000 worth for working expenses and pocket money.

MINES AND MINING

Items About Nevada's Leading Industry Clipped From Exchanges.

Experts are examining mines in nearly every camp in Lincoln county in the interest of capital.

Josephine is the name of the Lincoln county lost mine, said to have been recently found by Dr. Watkins.

Favorable reports continue to be received from the New Klondike mines in Esmeralda county. There is said to be a large quantity of rich ore in sight.

Ore has been struck in the new shaft of the Robust mine at Ely, White Pine county. The ore is reported to be the richest yet uncovered in the property.

The Wadsworth Dispatch says Lem Allen is much encouraged over the recent good results of tests made on the tin ore at West Gate, Churchill county.

BRIEVITIES.

A meeting of stockholders and creditors of the Reno Smelting and Milling Company will be held Friday for the purpose of reorganization.

She Rode Free.

A woman who had come out of the west, where she had been a cow girl on a ranch, was boarding a car in this city recently. She had just placed her foot upon the step and was preparing to take another step to the upper platform when, with a furious "Step lively!" the conductor pulled the strap. The car jerked forward, and the western woman swayed back for a minute, then just caught herself in time to prevent a bad fall upon the cobbles.

She confronted the conductor with angry eyes—eyes that had looked undismayed into those of mighty horned monsters of the prairies.

"What do you mean by starting the car before I was on it?" she asked.

"Can't wait all day for you, lady," the conductor snarled. "Just step inside there."

In a moment the western woman, with a backward golf sweep of the arm, lunged for the conductor's head. He dodged. The blow sent his hat spinning back into the track. The woman entered the car and sat down. She was flushed, but dignified. While the other women passengers were rather startled, they all knew just how she felt. Then the car stopped, while the conductor went back for his hat. The western woman rode free that time.—New York Sun.

Lost Hat Stories.

The London Globe has been collecting a series of lost hat stories, of which the following are specimens:

A father and son were standing at the entrance to Old Chain pier at Brighton when the dear little boy tumbled into the dancing waves. A bystander, accoutered as he was, plunged into the sea and, buffeting the waves with lusty sinews, succeeded at last in setting the dripping child at his father's feet. "And what hae ye done wi' his hat?" said papa.

A correspondent sent the following narrative: A festive bluejacket was seen from a ship in Malta harbor dancing on the top of the parapet wall at Fort Ricasoli. First his hat blew over, and then, leaning over to look for it, he lost his balance and fell after it—a sheer drop of 30 feet or more. The surgeon on duty was landed with a party to bring off the remains for identification. They found them crawling about on hands and knees and inquired if he was seriously hurt. "Hurt be blowed!" was his reply. "Where's my hat?"

ABOUT FOOD POISONS

A General Assembly Address by Professor N. E. Wilson.

The General Assembly lecture yesterday afternoon was made by Prof. N. E. Wilson. His subject was "Food Poisons." Following is Prof. Wilson's address in brief:

"Within the past few years poisoning with foods of various kinds has become quite prevalent, and such cases of poisoning seem to be on the increase, due probably to the fact that only in recent years has it been recognized that foods, ordinarily harmless, may become the most violent of poisons. These harmful effects of food may be due to a variety of causes, prominent among which are:

1st. Certain poisonous fungi may effect grains, thus causing epidemics of poisoning such as the ergot poisoning so prevolent in Russia and Spain.

2nd. Plants and animals may feed upon substances not harmful to them, but which effect man very seriously, when he eats the plant or the flesh of the animal, on account of his greater susceptibility, e. g. hogs may eat large quantities of arsnic or antimony without harm, but their flesh eaten by man would be a violent poison.

3rd. During periods of physiological activity of certain glands in some of the lower animals the flesh becomes harmful to man.

4th. Both animals and vegetable foods may become infected with specific germs of disease and serve as carriers of infection to man.

5th. Animals may be infected with specific diseases which may be transmitted to the human in meat and milk.

6th. Certain non-specific poison-producing germs may find their way into foods and by their growth produce chemical poisons, either before or after the food has been eaten. This class of food poisoning is found most common in the United States.

He spoke at length of the three forms of poison to the human system from eating mussels, of the meat poisons including sausage poisoning, and the danger from canned meats when not properly sterilized.

He also discussed the various forms of cheese poisoning, and described the discovery and isolation of the active principle of poisonous cheese known as tyrotoxicon. This discovery was made in 1884 by Dr. Vaughn of the University of Michigan. The address was concluded by a discussion of the danger from the use of evaporated milk and cream to which cane sugar had not been added, and of questionable preservation in all classes of canned foods.

A Paying Mine.

T. H. Deegan has returned from Selby's, where he had a carload of Joker and Go Down ore worked. He brought home half a hundred double eagles to divide with his partners.

The latter are pegging away on the Joker, out on Granite hill. They are down fifty feet on a three-foot ledge of hundred dollar rock. Since the last carload was shipped seven tons of first grade ore were hoisted.

DEATH OF JOSHUA G. LAW.

Was at One Time a Well-Known Journalist of the State of Nevada.

Joshua Green Law passed away on Thursday, September 20th, at the Cinnabar mines, Integral, Trinity county, of which he was the superintendent. Mr. Law was well and favorably known in Oakland, San Francisco, and Reno, Nevada.

Mr. Law was a son-in-law of the late A. H. Barnes, having married Ella F. Barnes at Reno, March 20, 1873.

He was at one time engaged in journalism and was one of the founders of the NEVADA STATE JOURNAL at Reno. He spent several years in Alaska, where he was interested in mining and salmon packing. He finally engaged in mining in Trinity county. Mr. Law was a native of North Caroline. He was a prominent Odd Fellow and for many years was a member of the A. O. U. W.
